

Friendly crowd cheers former Dixonite

Reagan hits at big government

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Ronald Reagan was among friends in Rockford on Monday and what he told them obviously pleased them.

At a reception in the Tebala Towers for about 400 invited guests, the former Dixonite assured his supporters something has happened to the people of the United States. "They have found out, after they have been told for 40 years everything is free, that they are who is paying."

He reiterated a call for pushing back government, to get its regulatory activities out of people's lives and issued a challenge to end bureaucracy.

At the Coronado Theatre, the candidate spoke to 1,600 persons on much the same themes.

Reagan declared it is time to turn our government around and decentralize it and suggested if people will elect him President he will dedicate himself to trying to accomplish these objectives.

The ex-California governor demanded the United States make detente work for us and not to be for the benefit of the Soviets.

He criticized the government for last fall's ban on export of grain, asserting agricultural producers were sold out.

The graduate of Dixon High School admitted many are discouraged at the election prospects of the GOP this year and related some have written "us off."

Reagan told a cheering crowd at the Tebala Towers, "I don't go along with this."

Hitting at big government, the California said the federal government activities account for 130 million man-hours per year. He revealed a committee of Congress has discovered if the paper used by the federal government in one year were stacked 4,500 feet high, the pile would be 100 feet long and 100 feet wide.

The candidate also maintained the federal government should get out of the private sector.

"Federal demands for money have spread beyond reason into the capital market until today government demands are after four of every five dollars in the capital market."

He said each minute that passes the federal government spends $700,000, charging, "this can't go on."

Making his biggest pitch why he should be elected, he told cheering supporters, "Anyone who is part of the Washington Establishment does not know where to make decisions to unravel the federal bureaucracy and return control to state and local governments."

He opposes school busing to achieve racial integration, noting "It's demeaning to a black child to tell him he cannot learn unless he sits between two white children."

Reagan declared gun-control laws do not work. "It was illegal for Squeaky Fromme (convicted of attempting to kill President Ford) to have a gun but it did not stop her."

The West Coaster suggested adding from five to 15 years to the prison sentence of a convicted felon if the crime was committed using a gun.

The toughest question posed for him by a sympathetic supporter was why he wanted to be President.

Reagan paused in thought before he answered and then said, "I believe maybe, the experience I have had can be used to turn government away from the course it is headed, for if something is not done in a few years we will see the end of the free enterprise system."

The two-term California governor declared, "The U.S. is committed to assure Israel the right to be a nation."

He also looked back at Vietnam and critically observed, "We violated our pledge in Vietnam and that today is one of our major problems."

"The government of the American people must forcefully tell the world, we will not again violate our committed word."

He proudly told followers public welfare reforms in California saved the state's taxpayers $2 billion in three years. "Welfare programs should be returned to state and local governments, and resources to fund them should also be turned back."

Reagan has said, in addition to welfare program, education aid, food stamps, Medicaid, housing and community development program have been failures and should be returned to local government and let them decide which they will continue.

The candidate's roughest going was with reporters.

He would rather forget he suggested a plan to cut $90 billion from the federal budget. In fact, Monday, Reagan admitted he made a mistake in saying there are six programs run by the federal government that should not be conducted. He said he should have pointed out they should be transferred to state governments.

Reagan told reporters what he mentioned in September about saving $90 billion should not be taken as a plan to save that amount of money. Rather, he suggested, the specific amount must be determined by total budget figures at any certain time.

Noticeably absent at the Reagan appearances Monday were Congressman John B. Anderson and 16th District State Committeeman David Martenson. Both are committed to Ford's re-elections.

If Reagan wins the Illinois primary, it will be in spite of the state GOP leaders, not with their help.

Two local candidates for delegates to the GOP Nominating Convention who are committed to Reagan were in Rockford. They are John Stouffer, county clerk, and Ruth Merrick, who was a classmate of his in Dixon High School.

Saunders pay cut restored

On a 16 to 7 vote the Lee County Board restored a cut in pay of Delbert Saunders, county animal control officer, and later took action to accept the resignation of Blaine Allen, District 2, member of the board.

Saunders received pay of $9,280 last year and last fall when the Finance Committee was at work on the 1976 budget, the members cut back Saunders' pay to $8,380. This was a 4 per cent plus $5 per month increase in the salary for which he was hired in 1974.

The animal control officer was hired about mid-year in 1974 and in the next year full-time employees got a 16 per cent increase in pay and Saunders was awarded this hike in salary.

Later, when this was discovered, Finance Committee members took the position, Saunders had not worked long enough to be eligible for the 1975 pay increase.

The County Service Committee today made the successful recommendation that Saunders receive the same pay this year that he was paid last year.

Allen, whose resignation from the board was accepted today, had been a member since 1962 and is a former chairman of the board.

Sheriff Ray Nehring asked for an additional appropriation for medical and hospital cost of prisoners and extra hire of deputies because of a prisoner held by the Dixon Police who during his stay in the jail required hospitalization.

Nehring noted the prisoner was Terry Miller, who was charged with murder, and because of the seriousness of this charge, was kept under a 24-hour guard while at the hospital.

The sheriff also said the $1,100 KSB Hospital bill and the $150 physician charges overspent the $1,000 which was appropriated for these purposes.

Nehring noted he is responsible for care and guarding of all prisoners in the county, but suggested since this was a city-incarcerated person, Dixon might share in the cost of having him in the hospital.

The request for reappropriation of funds was referred to the Finance Committee.

James P. Green, District 4, a member of the Finance Committee, noted the extra hire deputy account has $18,000 appropriated and suggested probably nothing now needs to be done with that account.

The board raised the number of liquor licenses in the county to issue one to Woodhaven Estates.

County Treasurer Sharon Thompson presented reports to the board which revealed the cost of collecting taxes is $63,421, and that interest earned by investment of county funds in 1975 was $280,875.

This brought an objection from Michael Heckman, superintendent of schools for Lee County, who contended there is $102,000 in 1972 tax receipts held by the county treasurer because of railroad tax objections. Heckman argued since schools get about 65 per cent of all property tax receipts, the interest on the impounded funds should go to the school districts in the county.

Thompson said she could not pay the interest to school districts without a county order.

Howlett critical of rising state costs

Inflation in government costs is the most-serious inflation affecting the Illinois taxpayer, Michael J. Howlett, secretary of state, said Monday.

Howlett, candidate for governor in the March 16 Democratic primary, was speaker at the Rotary Club meeting in the Nachusa House.

"Costs of Illinois government are at an all-time high," said Howlett.

"They have been rising faster than the cost of living, faster than the national government costs and faster than the costs of state government generally in the United States."

"When I was serving my first term in Springfield as auditor of public accounts in the early 60s, Illinois had a reputation as a low-tax, tightly run state."

"Today, the situation has changed. Illinois is moving up among the states in taxing and spending."

"The latest study of governmental finances published by the Census Bureau, for Fiscal 1974, found the direct general expenditure for state and local government in Illinois was $385.15, well up in the top half of the 50 states. The U.S. average was $358.74."

"From the 1959-1961 biennium to the 1973-1975 biennium, appropriations to the General Fund, the housekeeping fund of Illinois government, rose 539 per cent, from less than $15 billion to more than nine billion."

"From 1960 to 1974, roughly the same period, the national inflation, measured by the Consumers Price Index, was 66 per cent. Operating costs of Illinois government rose more than eight times as fast as the general inflation."

"Illinois state government spending has risen much faster than federal spending. While our Illinois total appropriations for all purposes went up 457 per cent in approximately 16 years ended in June, budgeted outlays of the federal government rose 206 per cent."

"In fiscal 1975, we spent $613 million more from the General Fund than in the year before. We spent $138 million more than the fund took in."

Howlett said the switch from biennial to annual appropriations, adopted in 1969, has encouraged faster spending. General Fund appropriations have more than doubled.

"They have risen 145 per cent in the last six years," he said. "Meanwhile, the national inflation in consumer prices was 34 per cent from 1969 to 1974."

"Every time we open the door of the legislature to consider appropriations, the price goes up. It is a fresh chance for every pressure group to come in with new demands."

"The governor has a Bureau of the Budget to review budget requests of each agency and prepare a professional fiscal analysis. It should be able to allocate appropriated money over a 24-month period."

"Without sacrificing necessary services, we should be able to find better ways to operate government offices to keep from breaking the back of the taxpayer."

Howlett said he has attacked costs steadily during his 15 years' administrative experience in state office—first, as Auditor of Public Accounts for 12 years and since January 1973 as secretary of state.

"It cost the taxpayers of Illinois less money to write a check in the auditor's office in 1972 than it did in 1961," he said.

"Since January 1973 we have taken hundreds of steps to provide better service while conserving the taxpayers' money in the office of the Secretary of State."

Howlett detailed some of the changes he has made. His total work force dropped 12 per cent in his first three years in office, he said, although new services have been instituted.

"But we do not consider economy to be an end in itself," he said.

"Our objective is not only to save the taxpayers' money but to make it available for the human needs of our people."

"We cannot afford to waste a dollar in inefficient administration if we are to give people the services they need and deserve and are paying for."

African summit ends in deadlock

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The African summit meeting to bring peace to Angola ended in deadlock today.

The three Angolan nationalist movements vowed to continue their civil war, and African diplomats predicted that the stalemate would encourage wider Soviet, American and South African participation in the conflict.

A spokesman for the Organization of African Unity announced that the chiefs of state and government heads decided to adjourn and to ask the seven-nation Angolan conciliation commission set up six months ago "to continue to follow the Angolan problem closely."

"We have failed the people of Angola," said Vice President Daniel Arap Moi as the three-day summit meeting ended at dawn following an all-night debate. "It is a very sad occasion."

Moi said Africa may now seek United Nations intervention in Angola because "there is no point in bringing Angola back to the OAU."

Premier Lopo do Nascimento of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) government in Luanda told reporters his forces would fight on. Jonas Savimbi of the National Union (UNITA) and Holden Roberto of the National Front (FNLA), whose battlefield alliance is supported by the United States, South Africa, Zaire and Zambia, said earlier they would also keep fighting if peace moves deadlocked.

The deadlock was so complete that the meeting even failed to produce a widely-expected condemnation of the intervention in the fighting by South Africa's white-minority regime.

Delegates said no votes were taken on a number of compromise proposals or on rival applications for OAU membership by the MPLA and FNLA-UNITA.

Morton appointed presidential counselor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today appointed Rogers C. B. Morton as a presidential counselor on economic and domestic policy with "incidental duties of liaison with the President Ford Committee and the Republican National Committee."

The 61-year-old Morton, who is stepping down as secretary of commerce, will get a $44,600 post as presidential counselor with Cabinet rank, press secretary Ron Nessen said.

Nessen said that Morton's duties at the White House, which he will start later this week, will be mainly in areas of economic and domestic policy.

Morton will retain membership on the President's Economic Policy Board, the Energy Resources Council and the Domestic Council, which he has held since last May in connection with his duties as commerce secretary, Nessen said.

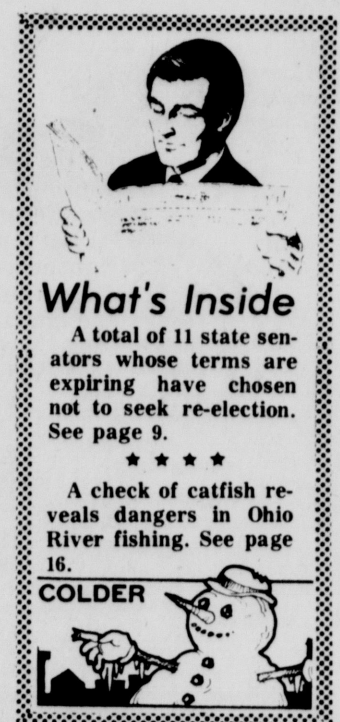

The press secretary was asked why Ford was making the appointment with only limited duties of a political nature, when Howard "Bo" Callaway, head of the President Ford Committee, had wanted someone in the White House as a coordinator to give him quick decisions on campaign matters. Nessen replied that the President wanted Morton's expertise as a former congressman and as a former secretary of both the Interior and Commerce departments, and he insisted that Morton's political activities be incidental.

Dr. Cole projects $18.22 per hour state aid for Sauk Valley College

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Sauk Valley College will receive $18.22 per credit hour in state aid if community college enrollments continue at present levels through June, according to Dr. George E. Cole, college president.

Cole told board members Monday night he learned of the disbursement at a meeting of the Illinois Council of Community College Presidents in Chicago.

Although original ICCB projections estimated state-aid at $19.20 per credit hour, the figure was revised downward to reflect increasing enrollments across the state during the summer and fall semesters.

Even at the lower rate, Cole said the college will have a balanced budget. "We set up our budget expecting to get $18 per credit hour," he said. The reimbursement rate will generate $1.3 million in state aid to Sauk.

The college has adopted a $3 million operating budget for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Cole reported spring enrollments are increasing over last year with the latest figures showing 2,477 students enrolled, an increase of 719 over spring, 1975. Credit hours increased slightly 30 per cent over 1975 and stood at 24,000. The last day for late registration is Jan. 23.

By unanimous vote, the board approved opening of the college library free of charge to all district residents aged 16 and over. Applications are available at the library and renewable cards are valid for one year intervals.

The new policy replaces one adopted in 1970 which set a $1 fee for use of the library.

Due to heavy enrollments in the Business Department, Cole recommended hiring of an additional full-time instructor.

Fall enrollments soared to 1,841 credit hours compared with 1,152 in the spring of 1975.

With the board approving the request, the department will have seven full and 14 part-time instructors. Wayne Holland, who has been employed on a term contract in the business department was hired.

In other action during a brief meeting, the board approved academic and administrative calendars for 1976-77.

—approved an affirmative action policy in compliance with federal government regulations.

Drawing from shallow pools

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Eisenhower warned, on his retirement, of the military-industrial complex.

Add now, the federal bureaucracy-university complex, less publicized, but as powerful.

A dozen universities regularly furnish an abnormally high percentage of the higher ranking bureaucrats in the major agencies of the government.

A handful of schools year after year receive a sizeable percentage of all research contracts given to academic institutions.

Some major schools reportedly cooperate with agencies of the government to give accreditation and mythical job appointments to certain individuals so that they will be eligible for high-paying influential government posts under special regulations, replacing men and women who have worked their way up through civil service channels.

Then there's the matter of overpayment. The various departments of the government regularly pay excessively high rates to certain universities and other favored academic groups for hurried superficial studies which would not meet the standards imposed by open competition in a free marketplace.

On occasion, I have been asked by friends in the government, as a personal favor, to look over one expensive study or another carried out on matters in which I had some background and experience. I have been shocked, both by the price the government paid for those pieces of research, and by the low quality of much of the material. In some instances it was quite clear that the researcher, usually a Ph.D., had clipped and pasted material from newspapers, books, pamphlets and other such sources, then typed them together with some limited continuity.

The research, in short, was abominable. The quality of the language was frequently submarginal. It was frequently difficult to determine what the author was driving at. After a careful study of his paragraphs, it became clear that he was hiding some obvious, simplistic statement behind polysyllabic words in order to make the reader believe he had deep insight into the situation.

In modern English, not a few of these studies are ripoffs. Yet the government agencies go back, time and again, to these same favored universities and private academic groups.

Recent studies have shed some light on these connections. There seems to be a definite pattern of personnel circulation between certain colleges and universities and certain departments, agencies and bureaus of the government. Graduates and professors regularly move into departments, where friends and associates are located, then back to the university or to special research institutions which have become "holding groups" for scholars out of government, perhaps because of a change of administrations, until the time is ripe to move back into the federal system in higher positions. These men, in turn, bring in their proteges who, more frequently than not, receive rapid promotions.

Sometimes, more commonly today than in the past, the circle is enlarged to include certain major corporations. In the main these companies themselves seem to have been heavily infiltrated by the men from the same academic institutions.

One might suppose offhand that these colleges and individuals were chosen for their excellence. As indicated above, the examples of the work I have seen suggest this is not always so. The favored colleges are not always those with the highest reputations. A goodly number of the nation's higher ranking institutions are not represented in appreciable numbers in the upper ranks of the bureaucracy. They are not numbered in the "in" group.

I suggest the growth of these cliques forms an unhappy pattern, dangerously narrowing the base on which government decisions are made.

"... and what with the increase in inflation, malpractice insurance, advertising costs ..."

Community mental health concept grows

There are now more than 600 community mental health centers in the United States, a slightly phenomenal bit of information, since the concept of these centers is only 10 to 15 years old.

According to Dr. Allan Beigel, chairman of the National Council of Community Mental Health Centers, World War II was responsible for the community mental health center concept. "These centers are based on some observations made during the war of how effective treatment could be if it was delivered close to the scene of the problem," said Dr. Beigel. "During the war, that was the battlefield. People were not taken away back to a hospital in the States as during earlier wars, but were treated by psychiatrists at the front."

Dr. Beigel, who is also with the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Arizona College of Medicine, noted that, though this may seem strange, this principle has become the core of the community mental health center concept. "The concept is mainly that services, if they can be rendered at the community level, if the staff of a program can be in contact with the person's family and the person can be kept in the family or in contact with the family, can lead to earlier intervention and more effective and rapid treatment of some types of emotional disturbances would be greater."

"Two core concepts related to that are accessibility and availability. A person who has emotional disturbances and wants to seek help should have it available 24 hours a day, and it should be accessible in the sense that he or she does not have to travel a great distance.

"Another core principal," said Dr. Beigel, "is what we call the concept of continuity of care. In a given illness, a person may require a wide variety of services delivered by a wide variety of treatment. It's important in this kind of situation that people responsible for this individual's treatment be in such communication that whether or not an individual needs different services at different times, there is a unified treatment plan toward a unified objective, namely, making that person better."

"Community mental health centers provide inpatient and outpatient care, partial hospitalization, day care or halfway houses. They do consultation and education in hopes of engaging in some kind of primary prevention. They provide rehabilitation services, and most have specialized programs directed towards substance abuse, both alcohol and drugs, and programs specifically directed to the needs of children and the needs of the aged."

"And community mental health centers do constant research and evaluation, so that they can understand whether what they're doing is effective," said Dr. Beigel.

Regulation holds down freight costs

By LEE R. SOLLENBARGER
The hottest transportation issue cooking on the political stove is the question of deregulation.

Let's not forget that the real fight over regulation is between the Department of Transportation and the Interstate Commerce Commission. And let's also face the fact that DOT is a Cabinet-level function reportable to the President, whereas the ICC reports to Congress. Therefore, we have a classic fight shaping up as to whether the legislative branch continues to control transportation or whether the President, through DOT, will control it.

I think it is high time we began to defend our rights. I am not talking about our rights as motor carriers. I am talking about our rights as American citizens. I am talking about the right to an efficient transportation system at a reasonable cost. We've got it now and we should be allowed to keep it.

But we face a small minority of self-styled experts who want to take these rights away from us. Of course, they do not claim they are doing this.

They even refuse, in the face of insurmountable evidence, to admit we have this kind of efficient, reliable transportation system. No society of people can progress beyond its transportation service. We have about 214 million people in this country. Of the 214 million, those who are attacking transportation regulation probably number about 38 or 39 (in) the White House, the Office of Management and Budget, the Council of Economic Advisors, the Justice Department, and DOT. All of government has come under the influence of a small, active band of economists, who deal in abstract theories. None of them, I dare say, has even a minimum of experience in freight transportation.

Add to that group the organization that calls itself COMET (the Committee on Modern Efficient Transportation). They ought to call it the Committee of Murdering Efficient Transportation. COMET is made up of giant shippers.

Here is a list of COMET members: American Paper Institute, Cargill, Carnation, Dow Chemical, Dupont, General Mills, National Association of Food Chains, Quaker Oats, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, and Whirlpool. The annual gross revenues of these companies exceed $40 billion, more than double the revenues of ICC-regulated motor carriers.

If we do deregulate our transportation system, these biggies will survive. In fact, without regulation, they will be in a position to start dictating terms regarding transportation.

But who will make certain the small town, the small shipper and the small shipment will be served? What I find particularly frustrating, and somewhat frightening, is the use of the big lie to discredit regulated transportation. Let us take a look at three of the biggest lies being circulated about regulated transportation:

One: Regulation stifles competition.

Two: Regulation creates a lot of empty backhauls.

Three: Regulation is costly. There are 18,000 transportation

Are primaries a red herring?

By TOM TIEDE
ORLANDO, Fla. (NEA)—Selected associates of Ronald Reagan are beginning to believe that the fight for the Republican presidential nomination will end—one way or the other—in Florida's May 9 primary. The feeling is that if Reagan wins in New Hampshire, then repeats the victory here, the public will thereafter abandon a President so weak. But if Reagan stumbles in either state, momentum will be lost against a seated chief executive, possibly for good.

Though speculation, this kind of foreword to the 1976 campaign is an indictment of the way the political parties choose their heroes. Clearly, neither Ford nor Reagan is popular enough for voters in just two small states to make the national decision between them. Yet it could happen. It has happened. The downfall of Lyndon Johnson, it's remembered, began in 1968's New Hampshire primary when Eugene McCarthy and the voters combined for the coup.

There is a word for this kind of political shaking out: Risky. Emotions of the moment are weak roots for democratic leadership. Yet the American system of staggered primary selection virtually assures that emotions—and theatrics and mindless energy—will play a principal role in party king-making. Few candidates can survive 30 primaries as statesmen; merely the best salesmen are there at the end.

To be sure, hawking is the chief strategy for both sides in Florida's Republican race. And it is embittered, somewhat hate-filled hawking as well. Taking a page from his mentor-benefactor, Ford is gearing up to sell the voters the idea he is their President. To counter, Reagan is peddling the idea he is their last hope, promising such exaggerations as a 23 per cent tax and $90 billion budget cut. Meanwhile, both staffs spend great amounts of time belittling each other, all the while insisting, with small evidence, that given the alternative their champions will have no worries on election day.

This drumming involves huge sums of money, of course, about $1.9 million altogether, or $4 for each of the votes that will be cast. Not surprisingly it also involves some highly suspicious morality: Reagan's people insist Ford's people have taken a poll which gives the President a mere single point advantage among questioned voters. Ford's people say all polls show the President leading comfortably. Ho hum. Nonetheless, somebody is lying, or at least misrepresenting.

There are those here who wonder about the profit of all this salesmanship. Noting soberly that "We Republicans are a relatively small group of people," Ford campaign publicist John Coleman also reminds that the division of fractions produces even smaller fractions. Yet at the same time he admits to no responsibility on his side: "We've got a President in office, we've got the incumbency advantage, why does this other guy want to step in and mess things up?"

And so it goes. The posturing, the sleight of hand, the peddling. Ford's campaign director recently commented that though his head was with the President, his heart was with Reagan. When the quote spread he issued a retraction, this time insisting that his "heart, head, hands and feet" and presumably liver were with the President alone.

Wonderful, but what does it mean? A headline or two, a moment's controversy, a roomful of mimeographed corrections? It does not put food on the tables of the unemployed, because primary politics never do.

In essence the primaries are a time of suspended meaningfulness, and of immobilized creativity. The idea is not to be brilliant but successful, to cater to the greatest number of special interest groups, to charm the largest percentage of the computer listings, to solicit the most important of the party's powerful. Promise them anything, like a 23 per cent tax cut, but get them all on the right side.

It is shabby business, to say the least, one that does not bode well for anything but four more years of four more years. Check that. The primaries also tend to reinforce the conviction among legions of concerned Americans that whatever hasn't happened in politics will happen, and that when it does no one will be safe from it.

Computerized sewing

Automation has finally come to an industry which has traditionally been one of the most labor-intensive and which has given an economic first leg up to countless immigrants.

A computerized sewing machine called the "Memory Stitcher" can execute a 75-stitch pattern, including belt loops, button holes and seams, in less time than it takes to thread a needle. Until now, each of these functions required a separate machine or a costly break in production to reset equipment.

Union Special Corp. of Chicago, developer of the new machine, plans to enlarge its memory to handle such tasks in the future as attaching sleeves to shirts.

Happily, the fact that the "Memory Stitcher" can be easily operated by unskilled labor will mean more rather than fewer job opportunities in the apparel industry, whose profits have been lagging at 2.5 per cent of sales. Better yet, says the industry, automated sewing will mean cheaper clothes for consumers.

Most school employees will get raises starting next year as a result of action taken by the Board of Education Wednesday night. The new schedule starts a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience at $5,400, up $200, and goes to a top salary of $10,368 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 32 hours and with 18 years' teaching experience. The previous top base salary was $8,200.

One was captured an hour later in a local cafe.

companies of all kinds under ICC regulation. About 15,000 of these are trucking companies. And more than 11,000 of these trucking companies have annual gross revenues of less than $300,000. The four largest carriers account for only 10 per cent of the total revenue, and the eight largest for only 14 per cent.

Compare that to the motor vehicle manufacturing business, which is non-regulated, and where the four largest companies account for 92 per cent of the volume, or steel manufacturing, also non-regulated, where the eight largest have 65 per cent of the business or the cigarette manufacturing business, also non-regulated, where the eight largest companies have virtually all the business.

The critics claim that without regulation a lot of new trucking companies would blossom forth. New operations are coming all the time as they are needed. A new company can come into the business, but it has to show there is a need for its service.

Let's go to a country that has deregulated its transportation, Australia, and we find the business largely controlled by six carriers. So the government there now is looking for the best system by which to re-establish control.

While our critics tell us in one breath we need more trucking companies, they tell us in the next that too many trucks are going around empty because of regulation.

The real figure for empty mileage among ICC-regulated motor carriers is about seven per cent—and this has nothing to do with regulation. This seven per cent would be unavoidable under any circumstances.

The average American citizen today takes his freight transportation for granted. If he wants to purchase something—anything from potatoes to golf shoes to a television set—he does not wonder if it is possible to get it. He knows he can get it—and it doesn't matter whether he is living in New York City or Fords Prairie, Washington. There is no commodity or service on the market today that is being offered at a more reasonable price than transportation.

I challenge DOT, or the Office of Management and Budget, or the Council of Economic Advisors, or the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department, or COMET—or all of them put together—to come forth with the slightest piece of evidence to show that any of these facts I have just listed is in error.

Enticing meatless casserole

By AILEEN CLAIRE
Eating habits are changing and more people of all ages are enjoying vegetables. A potato-vegetable casserole should please the ardent vegetable fan and the reluctant convert. It combines potato nuggets, zucchini and tomatoes, for example, with seasonings in the Italian vein. Served with sliced chicken or meatballs.

POTATO-VEGETABLE CASSEROLE
1 package (16 ounces) frozen potato nuggets
6 small zucchini (about 3/4 pound)
1/2 cup fresh frozen chopped onions
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
2 tablespoons oil
1 (8 1/2 ounce) can tomatoes
1 teaspoon basil, crumbled
1 chicken bouillon cube, crumbled
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup shredded Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Turn potato nuggets into a 2-quart casserole. Bake in preheated oven for 10 minutes. Cut zucchini into one-fourth inch slices to measure 3 cups. Sauté onion and garlic in oil in a medium skillet until soft. Add zucchini and cook 5 minutes. Add tomatoes (breaking up any large pieces), basil, bouillon cube, lemon juice, sugar and salt. Simmer 2 or 3 minutes.

Toss with potatoes in casserole. Combine cheese and parsley. Sprinkle over top and return casserole to oven for 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Transfer cues small slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby
North's three-club call was the Jacoby transfer and South dutifully bid three diamonds. When North continued to three notrump, South knew that his partner was interested in a slam. Without slam interest North would simply have bid three notrump directly.

South's four clubs and North's four hearts were cue bids. South was tempted to bid six notrump, but was wise enough to settle for six diamonds.

There was very little to the play. South won the club lead in dummy, knocked out the ace of diamonds and claimed — since he could discard one of dummy's spades on a high club.

Six notrump would fall one trick short. South could only come to 11 tricks with the spade finesse off.

Also, if North had played six diamonds a spade lead would have cooked his goose since

Sex doesn't have to end at 50

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading letters from women who think sex should end at 50. May I share my experience with them?

My husband is 61 and I am almost 64. We have been married only five months. My man could give some of those young fellows lessons on love. Most "frigid" women could be cured by his method.

For one thing, he still makes his living by hard physical labor and comes home covered with tar, sawdust and other disagreeable substances. Before we go to bed he bathes, shaves, uses a good deodorant and puts on clean night clothes. He doesn't drink anything stronger than coffee.

When we retire, I lie quietly in his arms and we discuss the day's activities or our past lives. I'd been a widow for six years and never believed I would ever be able to enjoy sex again. But the combination of my love for him and a chance to relax before love-making has proved miraculous.

Husbands sometimes forget that women are not as easily aroused as men. Young wives who rattle with children all day or are worn out from housework or a second job, need a quiet time before they can respond to their husbands. Many husbands find fault with their wives at the supper table and then expect them to be ready for romance the moment the lights go out. My husband compliments my cooking and my hair style. These things help me forget I am almost 64. Our love grows stronger every day. Please sign me—Young At Heart

Dear Heart: Beautiful! Your husband sounds like a prize—and so do you. I'm glad you found each other. Bless you both.

Dear Ann Landers: Want to perform a real public service? Tell people about the latest VD bummer. Most folks think only of gonorrhea and syphilis. Antibiotics can handle those, but this new-fangled infection from sexual contact causes clusters of blisters and is extremely painful. What's worse it's INCURABLE. There are already 300,000 reported cases. Warn people, Ann.—Bad News

Dear B.N.: The latest "VD bummer" is called Herpes Simplex II. A vaccine has been produced to combat Herpes Simplex II and it is effective in about 50 per cent of the cases. This hideous contagion can be controlled by medication, but it's a stubborn disease. A crash research program to find a more effective vaccine is under way at this very moment.

Dear Ann Landers: As a rule your answers are far better than anything I could come up with. But you certainly missed the boat when you told "The Only Husband I Know Is Mine" to overlook "Mrs. Master's De-gree's" rudeness. She was the executive's wife who had a habit of calling her husband's office switchboard and asking, "Is my husband there?" (no other identification.)

The switchboard operator should say, in her politest voice, "Yes he is, I'll ring him for you." Then she should ring the wrong husband. I'll bet the wife would identify herself after a couple experiences like that.

I'm signing my letter—An Executive's Mrs. With Better Manners

Dear Mrs.: Take a bow, lady, your answer was better than mine. Thanks for a nifty solution.

UMW Unit

The first meeting of the year for the United Methodist Women's Unit was held Thursday in the church parlor with Mrs. Francis Waytenick, newly elected president, presiding. Circle count was taken, with 32 present including one guest from San Diego, Calif.

It was announced that the yearbooks will be ready for distribution on Wednesday by the circle chairmen.

Mrs. Ivan Wallace, chairman of Christian Personhood, announced that Bible study groups would begin today in the homes of Mrs. Elmer Miller, 316 E. Fourth St., and Ms. Connie Wolfe, 302 E. Boyd St., beginning at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Wallace also announced that there will be a Day Apart meeting in the church parlor on Feb. 5, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., with everyone bringing a sack lunch.

District President Mrs. Harold Huffman announced the Day of Renewal will be held from 9:45 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 6 at Ohio, March 8 at Erie, March 12 at Malta, and from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Ottawa, with a nursery provided.

Mrs. Richard G. Battles, program chairman, introduced Al Graff, executive director of the Sinissippi Mental Health Center and former pastor of the First Christian Church, Dixon. He outlined the procedures and departments of the Center and reviewed the facilities available and the purpose. He stated 900 cases in Lee County had been noted in the year 1975. Keeping people with their families without long stays in hospitals is highly recommended, he said. Many are advised where they may find services for their particular case after being evaluated. Graff said there is a 24-hour emergency program set up and in the first six months there have been 400 emergency calls. He explained that "There is an out-patient program for counseling over a short-term period. Medication helps to stabilize individuals in many cases. In acute cases, tolerance and acceptability is required on the part of the public. There are also community consultations with police, pastors, sheltered care personnel and with volunteer individuals on probation."

Mrs. Gladine Prince, member of the Lee County Council on Aging for Senior Citizens of Dixon Drop-In Center, gave a short resume of the purpose and aims of the center, stating the need for volunteer help, financial aid and the need of furnishing. They will be having a referral service to impart information to help each particular person and may call 288-2117. She also informed the members of the purchase of two buses, which will be shared by Kreider Rehabilitation Center and the Foster Parents of the Dixon State School. There will be a morning and afternoon route in Dixon and one in the county each day. So far, there are no monies for maintenance and operation of the buses. There will be a small fee for transportation. She stated there are no federal funds involved. The opening of the center is to be Thursday.

Jan. 22 at 9 a.m. there will be a current events course offered at the center, conducted by Dorothy Dodd, Sterling. This will be available each week if there is a class of at least 12. Senior citizens are asked to call in and make reservations. There will be socializing activities, a health program and many others.

The meeting was concluded with group singing led by Mrs. Francis Jennings, and devotions were presented by Mrs. Earl LeFevre. ## Unemployment rate expected to drop to 7.5 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. unemployment rate will average between 7.5 per cent and 7.75 per cent this year, compared with 8.5 per cent last year, the Commerce Department predicts.

The department also estimated that prices are expected to rise by 6.5 per cent this year, compared with 7 per cent in 1975.

The department, in a report issued Sunday, also predicted that the volume of total economic output this year will rise by 6 per cent or 7 per cent on the basis of continued growth in U.S. industrial production. By comparison, the total output, or Gross National Product, was virtually flat last year.

The report said the projection on economic output "will represent an average to above-average economic expansion in comparison to equivalent periods of the preceding four recoveries."

On unemployment, the report said that although the over-all forecast was for at least average post-recession growth, major progress in fighting unemployment will be hindered by increased productivity and industrial operation at rates still well below capacity.

For example, while the auto industry is expected to experience an improvement of 13 per cent in output, auto-industry employment was expected to increase by only 2.6 per cent.

In other economic news:

—James E. Smith, comptroller of the currency, denied Sunday that his office considers the First National City Bank and the Chase Manhattan Bank as problem banks. Spokesmen for the two banks also denied that the banks were in trouble.

The Washington Post had reported that the New York City banks have been placed by the comptroller on a secret list of problem banks.

—New data from the Federal Reserve System showed Sunday that 954 banks in 33 states held $6.491 billion of New York State and New York City obligations as of last fall.

The new study was requested by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y. The Federal Reserve said that in general banks' "holdings of New York obligations have presumably decreased as a result of the retirement of obligations which matured subsequent to the survey dates" last November.

—Argentina, once a major wheat export competitor of the United States, Canada and Australia, is on the verge of regaining its earlier role if the harvest turns out as well as it now looks, the Agriculture Department said today.

—The domestic steel industry must produce an additional 25 million to 30 million tons by 1980 if it is to meet steel demand, Industry Week magazine says.

SO NEAR and yet so far. A cat on the inside of a closed window can only watch and dream as pigeons on the outside enjoy a bread-crumbs dinner in this Montreal street scene.

Economic illiteracy hit by lawyer

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — John Q. Jennings has a message for America in the year 1976, a year in which many important labor contracts will be negotiated.

We are a nation of economic illiterates, says Jennings, excusing nobody. Students, teachers, workers, executives, government officials — all illiterate, he says.

Because we are so ignorant, he continues, we suffer a plague of economic ailments, including inflation, strikes, a shortage of capital for expanding industry, and a variety of needless frictions and frustrations.

Particularly irksome to Jennings, who is a lawyer and consultant, is the misunderstanding of profits. No matter whom he asks, he says, they seem to think profits are greater than they really are. He includes businessmen.

During the first half of 1975, he says, all manufacturing corporations earned a net profit after taxes of $21.7 billion on sales of $513.7 billion, for a return on sales of 4.2 per cent.

HEY BROTHERS
ICE CREAM
In Many Delightful
Flavors.
Always Choose

Recently he questioned some corporate personnel officers. Analyzing their written responses, he found they believed profit margins were 33 per cent. He wasn't shocked. Almost nobody knows the answer, he says.

He asked the same group what they considered a fair profit. They said 10 per cent. That's more than twice what manufacturers have been making, and seven times the 1.4 per cent earned by retailers.

"Nobody knows the arithmetic," said Jennings, a former mediator of union-management debates and later a corporate executive and head of John Q. Jennings Associates. In the mid-1940s he headed the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Michigan.

"I've never had trouble with unions," he said, adding that he has found union leaders reasonable in their demands when presented the facts. "Give them the facts and they act responsibly," he said.

But, he said, the unions often hear corporations boasting to stockholders while crying to unions. "They're not mind readers; you can't expect them to guess the facts, the truth."

If the information isn't made available to them, he asked, how can you expect workers not to feel they are being denied their share of the pie, considering the false assumptions they and others are inclined to make?

For example, he said, there is a widespread notion that workers don't share the benefits of the economy they help create. Few people know, he maintains, that employees receive 89.6 per cent of the divisible income of a corporation.

The remaining 10.4 per cent, he points out, goes for what is referred to as profits after taxes, but he cites a poll that suggests employees think the division is about 75 per cent profit, 25 per cent compensation.

"The colossal difference between this opinion and the facts constitutes what is probably the greatest economic delusion of the 20th century," Jennings said in an interview.

Well, why not come out with the facts? That's where Jennings comes in. It's his business to convince corporations to release division of income facts that often are hidden not only from workers but investors and even themselves.

It's an old tradition, he maintains. He recalls that in 1946, after 175,000 General Motors employees had been on strike for more than three months, the company finally revealed that the division of income was 90-10.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-674: Bo Crane, aged 4½, is one of our grandchildren. "Dad," his mother began, "Daniel has been arguing with me about sending Bo to a church nursery school."

"It is just a few blocks from our home and operates only about three hours per day. "But Daniel thinks I am just trying to get Bo out from under my feet for a few hours. "Actually, it would give me a little more time to do my shopping, for with Joshua only 18 months old and the new baby, I have my hands full."

"But I truly think Bo would benefit more from getting to mingle with youngsters of his own age, for he still spends eight or nine hours with me and his daddy, anyway."

Bravo, Nursery Schools
Bravo to nursery schools, especially of the private or church variety.

But beware of the attempt by Washington bureaucrats to forcibly take your toddlers into government financed schools where the bureaucrats will try to brainwash kiddies via the current "Child Control Bill."

And you busy mothers with several children, plus household and social duties, as well as running errands for your husbands, deserve a chance to send your toddlers away from you for a few hours daily.

Most husbands would go crazy if they changed jobs with their wives and thus tried to run the household, as well as chaperone, referee and nursemaid a few preschool toddlers.

Besides, children get more physical action by running and romping on the playground with other nursery school classmates.

And they also become socialized, so a nursery school is imperative for an "only" child.

It extroverts such toddler tyrants who have no brothers or sisters at home with whom to share the family spotlight.

Nursery Schools are thus splendid insurance to help prevent later divorce, since they begin the early tutelage of kiddies in the rights, wishes and feelings of others, especially of the opposite sex.

In my psychological survey of "only" children, as reported in the Hearst newspaper in Chicago some years ago, I showed that an "only" child is usually more self-centered and thus a much greater divorce risk.

Like the typical old bachelor, the "only" child has become habituated to getting its own way and monopolizing the lime-light, so both types of person are more difficult to live with happily after marriage.

Oh, there are plenty of exceptions to the rule but the odds favor happy marriage when both parties thereto have been educated to live under the same roof where they mingle, feud and then compromise after daily quarrels with their siblings.

The oldest child is also an "only" child for a time so both have a strong sense of property rights (capitalists).

Remember, the Biblical

Love is skin-deep. Give Blood.

"Prodigal Son" was the younger boy, for the older son was dutiful, thrifty and hard working; not the spendthrift boy who grew intoxicated with the social adulation of his sycophantic friends.

Both the "only" and the eldest thus tend to have more "horse sense" or resourcefulness.

They are also more likely to be "doers" instead of "talkers" and finishers of chores!

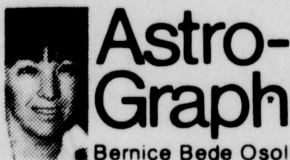

As introverts, they also become zealots, not easily dissuaded from their political and religious convictions. St. Paul was probably an "only" or eldest child.

They are not as readily stampeded by the crowd behavior, so they are not as quick to pick up the cigaret or drug habits, communist or "liberal" views and slang.

Parents can rely on them to finish their tasks and save their money (as well as our taxes).

So send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, containing the "Introvert-Extrovert" tests, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets).

POST HOUSE TO HOST FULL GOSPEL BUSINESS MEN

The Sauk Valley Chapter of The Full Gospel Business Men will hold their monthly meeting at The Post House on Saturday, January 17th. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Dinner reservations must be made by Thursday noon, January 15th. The cost will be $3.60. Make your reservation by calling Clifford Schick, 288-1833 or Herb Youngren, 284-6731.

The guest speaker will be the Reverend Walter Lamp. For 21 years he has served as a Lutheran minister, 13 years of which was spent in Rockford.

About 9 months ago he felt a tugging inside of him to minister in a non-denominational church in Rockford called "The Church of The Living Water". His dynamic testimony will thrill your heart and soul.

The singing will be conducted by our own Herb Youngren. For an uplifting evening, plan now to attend this dinner meeting.

HONOLULU (AP) — Four days a week most businessmen trudging between Honolulu's skyscrapers could pass for their counterparts in other cities.

But on Friday dull gray sidewalks become a parade of color.

It's Aloha Friday. Though bankers, lawyers, admen and politicians may still wear wing-tips and carry attache cases, they are likely to be wearing a brilliantly printed Hawaiian aloha shirt.

The Hawaiian garment industry began promoting "Aloha Shirt Friday" 10 years ago as a day to put aside neckties in favor of the casual wear made here. Government proclamations and resolutions lent support.

The idea has benefited the garment industry and has played a part in the increasingly casual and colorful look of this major commercial and financial center. For some, every day is aloha shirt day.

"I don't think there's a business any more which doesn't observe Aloha Shirt Friday," says Ray Sasaki Jr., president of the Hawaiian Fashion Guild.

As the Dean Witter stock brokerage firm, local manager Paul T. C. Loo says: "You would think we would be stuffy. But some of us wear aloha shirts every day of the week."

At the Dillingham Corp., one of the state's largest, a spokesman says: "Some of the executives who were given to wearing suits — God forbid the idea — now wear aloha shirts except when they might have to meet somebody from out of town."

Even the Army experimented for a time with allowing soldiers at desk jobs to wear aloha shirts on some Fridays.

Banks, local airlines, private schools and the state's largest bread manufacturers have capitalized on the popularity of the look by issuing aloha shirt uniforms.

Nobody has been able to calculate the benefit to Hawaii's 107 garment manufacturers, who make little besides aloha shirts and corresponding women's wear. "But it sure didn't hurt our business," says Sa-

The industry's wholesale revenues have tripled in the past 20 years to $50 million annually.

Dates set for Sauk Arts Festival

The third annual Festival of Arts and Crafts will be sponsored by the Sauk Area Arts Council Feb. 13-15 at Sauk Valley College.

Mrs. Milly Cole, Festival coordinator, said the event is sponsored annually by the Arts Council, a non-profit organization established to promote arts and crafts in the SVC area. The theme of this year's Festival will stress the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

Mrs. Cole said she hopes this festival will be more successful than last year's event which attracted more than 9,000 spectators and included 300 individual and group performers and exhibitors in the arts and folk-craft areas.

This year's activities will include a rock and mineral show, square dance festival, children's theatre, rural life craft displays, performances by area bands, special presentations from college groups, as well as antique and collectable exhibits by both dealers and private collectors.

Mrs. Cole said that any local person with skills or exhibits in these or other folk art fields is encouraged to take part in the festival. Persons interested in participating may contact Mrs. Cole at 626-4416 or Mrs. Suzanne Williams, Dixon, festival exhibit chairman, at 652-4284.

A special feature this year will be the painting and judging of 40 oil and acrylic murals which will be donated to the college following the festival. Festival coordinators will provide canvas and paints to the first 40 local area artists who wish to create a mural and take part in this activity.

The purple tablets were tested and the results, reported Monday, confirmed that the pills contained lysergic acid diethylamide (LSD).

Final approval on primary ballot delayed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Bogged down in legal challenges to its rules, the State Board of Elections has postponed the final approval of names to appear on the March 16 Illinois primary election ballot.

Under state law, Thursday is the deadline for the board to certify the petitions filed by candidates for state offices, Congress, the General Assembly, judgeships and the presidential preference contest.

But a ruling by Judge J. Waldo Ackerman of Circuit Court on the lottery method used for determining ballot position prompted the board Monday to put off certification until the Supreme Court has a chance to consider the matter.

Acting on a complicated suit filed by several independent candidates for Circuit Court judgeships in Cook County, Ackerman said a board rule involving the lottery method used to determine ballot position is unfair.

The names of candidates for non-statewide offices appear on the ballot in the order in which they file their petitions. But when several candidates file at the same time, generally at the opening of the filing period, a lottery is held to determine the order.

Many politicians believe a high ballot position can be an advantage in an election.

Ackerman threw out a board rule which treated a slate of names the same as an individual name when drawing for ballot position. However, the judge said the slated names could appear together after the names of the individuals who filed at the same time.

The board decided Monday to appeal Ackerman's ruling to the Illinois Supreme Court and ask that it be considered quickly.

Although Ackerman's ruling applies only to the Cook County judgeships, it could open the way to challenges by candidates whose ballot positions already have been determined by lottery.

In another action, the board removed Don DuMont of Chicago from the Republican ballot in the presidential preference primary election. They said DuMont had only 300 of the minimum 3,000 names required to be listed on the presidential preference ballot.

A perennial candidate, DuMont had sought to challenge former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and President Ford in the nonbinding voting which also will be held March 16. Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago also filed petitions to appear in the GOP presidential primary.

The board also ruled by a 3-1 vote that it had no power to act on a complaint against the Democratic party's slatemaking procedure.

State Rep. John Matijevich, D-North Chicago, has protested the selection of a 31-member subcommittee which met privately Dec. 1 in Chicago before proposing a list of candidates for state office which the party organization then endorsed.

Matijevich, a state central

11 Senate incumbents to step down

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — More than one-fourth of the 40 members of the Illinois Senate whose terms expire next year have decided against running for re-election in 1976.

The State Board of Elections reports that 11 incumbents in the 59-member Senate did not file nominating papers for the state's March 16 primary election, during which Republican and Democrats will be elected to run against each other in November.

Some of the incumbents, notably the two Senate leaders — President Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, and Minority Leader William C. Harris, R-Pontiac — are seeking other offices.

Others have decided to return to private life, citing the increased demands of time made on legislators.

Of the 121 candidates who filed for the primary, 42 have no primary opposition and four will have no major party or independent opponents in the November general election. The list of candidates includes nine representatives, at least four former legislators, 10 women and several mayors.

Heated primary election battles are expected in some districts where an incumbent is stepping down.

One of the fiercest is likely to be for the Democratic nomination in the 11th District, covering the far North Shore area of Chicago and a portion of Evanston.

The incumbent, Michael I. Brady, pulled a surprise maneuver in announcing that he was giving up his Senate seat to run for the House.

That opened the way for a pitched battle between independent Rep. Joseph R. Lundy and Rep. Arthur L. Berman, who has the regular Democratic organization support, for the chance to run for Brady's seat.

Another Chicago Democratic contest is shaping up in the 26th District being vacated by Partee, who is the party organization's slated candidate for attorney general.

Rep. Harold Washington, picked by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization to replace Partee, may face a spirited challenge from former independent Alderwoman Anna R. Langford. No candidates filed for the Republican nomination.

Downstate, a race to watch is in the 53rd District along the east-central edge of the state.

The seat currently is held by Sen. Tom Merriitt, who announced he was retiring to spend more time with his family and business interests.

Freshman Rep. Max E. Coffey is facing former Danville Mayor Albert E. Gardner for the GOP nomination.

A field of four, including Woody L. Lee, president of the Illinois Education Association, is vying for the Democratic nomination.

In the north-central 38th District, which is being vacated by Harris for a run at the secretary of state post, Republican Rep. John E. Grotberg is unopposed in the GOP primary election.

The Democratic contenders include former state central committeeman Francis R. Barron, Ottawa Mayor James M. Thomas and Pontiac Mayor Joseph S. Trainor.

A pair of professors from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in the 56th District are battling for the chance to run against Democratic incumbent Sam Vadalabene, who has no primary opposition.

Business professor Glenn T. Wilson is facing biology professor Gertrude C. Wittig, a local women's rights leader, in the Republican contest.

Decatur Mayor James H. Rupp has no opposition in the 51st District Republican primary after a district electoral board voted last week to remove former Rep. Webster Borchers' name from the ballot.

The board took the action in the wake of Borchers' Circuit Court conviction of felony charges in connection with the misuse of his legislative expense allowance.

Senior Party Line

It seems that the eligibility requirements for food stamps are always changing. Can you tell me what is now in effect?—L.O.

Dear Mrs. O:

Slight increases in the dollar value of the monthly food coupon allotments, and slight increases in the income limits for food stamp recipients, have just gone into effect. A one-person household may have "net" monthly income of up to $215 and still qualify for food stamps. The figure is $307 for a two-person household, $433 for three persons, and $553 for four.

"Net income" means total income minus a number of expenses, such as income or Social Security taxes, medical costs in excess of $10 a month, certain child care costs, and housing costs that exceed 30 per cent of income. Persons 65 and older do not have to register for work, as do younger food stamp recipients.

The amount of the monthly stamp allotment has also been increased slightly and is now $50 for a family of one, $92 for a family of two, $130 for three persons, and $166 for four. In other words, an eligible one-person household can receive $50 worth of food stamps a month. The stamps are not free, unless you have no income. Depending on the size of your income, you'll have to pay a portion of the $50 in order to get the stamps. The volunteers at the Senior Action Center can help determine if you are eligible for food stamps. Formal application is made at the county Public Aid office.

Last year I signed up at the courthouse for the homestead exemption to qualify for a reduction in my property tax. Do I have to do the same this year?—M.T.

Dear Mr. T:

You will not have to go through the application process all over again. You will, however, have to submit a renewal form to the local assessor's office. This form, which will probably be sent to you in the mail, will certify that the property has not changed hands in the past year and that you, as a senior homeowner, are still eligible for a property-tax reduction. The homestead exemption provides a $1,500 reduction in assessed value for persons 65 and older who must pay property tax on their residences.

If you turned 65 after Jan. 1 in 1975 you do not qualify for the reduction on 1975 property taxes but you will qualify for the reduction on 1976 taxes. Go to the county assessor or supervisor of assessments and apply. Take along proof of age (Medicare card, birth certificate), a photocopy of the deed to your property (you can obtain one at the Recorder of Deeds office), and a copy of your last tax bill or a taxpayer's identification card which will give the index number of your property.

A bill was passed in 1975 to allow seniors to apply for the exemption at age 64 in order to receive it by age 65, but the legislation was vetoed.

Is it necessary for senior citizens to file an income tax return, since Social Security benefits are not taxable?—D.T.

Dear Mrs. T:

If you are 65 or older and single, you do not have to fill out a tax return unless your income was over $3,100. If you are married and filing a joint return and both you and your spouse are 65 or older, you don't have to file unless your income was over $4,900. If only one of you is 65 or older, you file if your income exceeded $4,150. "Income," remember, does not include Social Security benefits, which are tax-exempt.

Even if your income is less than the figures just mentioned, you will want to fill out a tax form if you worked and had taxes deducted from your paycheck. Filing a return is the only way you can receive your refund.

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging 288-2117.

Nonsmoker's Bill of Rights

A nonsmoker and a person who smokes sit down next to each other at a restaurant counter. The smoker lights a cigarette, and both diners end up inhaling smoke throughout their meals. Does the nonsmoker have a right to make the smoker put out the cigarette? In some states, the nonsmoker does. About 75 per cent of all Americans do not smoke. A growing number of state lawmakers are heeding these nonsmokers by drafting antismoking legislation. Minnesota, for example, enacted one of the toughest antismoking laws in the nation recently. The law prohibits smoking in indoor public places, except in those areas specifically designated for smoking.

Overpass election ordinance tabled by Rochelle Council

ROCHELLE—A resolution to prepare an ordinance for a special election in reference to the proposed four-lane overpass on U.S. 51 in Rochelle was tabled at Monday night's city council meeting and will be acted upon at a special meeting later in the week.

An ICC ruling states Rochelle must build a four-lane overpass over the railroad tracks on U.S. 51 and Rochelle must have an answer for the ICC by March 24.

Challenged by citizens in Monday night's audience, Mayor Bill Cipolla and council members were asked why they did not take the initiative to make the decision for the project when this is why they were elected by the people.

Financing the overpass presents the biggest problem. Mayor Cipolla favors a 3½ per cent utility tax for the ½ per cent. Should bonding be necessary or a real estate tax be imposed, then a referendum by the people must be held.

Rochelle's share of the project is $1.6 million or 45 per cent; five per cent or $100,000 would be paid by the railroad and 50 per cent by the state. It was indicated that, legally, Rochelle can't collect half of their share from the county.

In other business council members heard a letter from the three funeral directors in Rochelle informing that as of March 1 they would discontinue all ambulance services in Rochelle because of high costs. Fire Chief Bill Lower sees no problem in taking over service although boundary lines must be established, he said.

Accepted a bid for a Chevy Vega for the social worker, from Sawicki Chevrolet for $3,295; payment to be made from the federal grant for the social-worker program.

Rejected a bid of $103 from Manning Electric for a 1965 Utility Department line-ladder utility truck.

Advised for bids for cleanout and channel improvements to the Kyte Creek from the Northwestern tracks south and west to US 51. Work is to be done before the spring rainy season to alleviate flooding. Bids are to be in the office of the city engineer by 10 a.m. Jan. 26.

Passed a resolution concerning improvements on Avenue G. They by-passed a city ordinance that requires a 37-foot width. Avenue G will be 24 feet in width with right-turn lanes. The reason that this is being done is the high cost of moving existing city water lines, utility poles and telephone poles.

Referred to the plan commission an annexation petition and a preliminary plat for the Paul Jones Subdivision, Sunset Fields No. 4.

Helpful Hints for Good Decorating

Do you have a cramped, crowded room in your home that's the scene of traffic jams when more than two people congregate there? Here are some tips that will help you avoid creating an uncomfortable room in the future. Allow about 18" to 20" of space between your sofa and the cocktail table. This will provide adequate leg room for family and guests. See that there is a table fairly close to each chair for holding ash trays, refreshments, etc. Study the traffic patterns of the room, then be sure to keep the busy areas free of furniture to allow easy movement from one end to the other.

If you have an extremely large sitting room or bedroom, why not break it up into two or three functional areas? You might want an area for conversation, a reading corner, hobby section, etc. You can change the atmosphere in your bedroom right along with the changing seasons simply by alternating several bedspreads. Choose a lively, flowery print in spring, brilliant fall colors in autumn, and a crisp, cool-looking fabric for summer. Our decorating experts will be happy to assist you with planning your home's decor and selecting its furnishings. Give Dunbar's a call today, it's the store with unlimited ideas.

Phillips, the defending AA champion, saw its comfortable lead of a week ago cut to a narrow row 14 points over No. 2 and undefeated Peoria Richwoods.

Phillips was named on eight first-place ballots and totaled 296 points on the basis of 16 points for first, 15 for second and on down. Richwoods had seven first-place votes and 282 points.

Undefeated East Leyden held third place with four first-place votes and 270 points. The other first place vote went to undefeated Normal Community which climbed from eighth to seventh place.

Joliet Central moved from fifth to fourth as Marist, fourth a week ago, dropped to No. 10 following a 57-51 loss to Holy Cross. West Aurora moved up two places to No. 5 while Bloom retained sixth place.

Sterling climbed to places to No. 8 while Thornridge held the No. 9 spot. Decatur Eisenhower leaped from 14th to 11th after a 91-65 crushing of Champaign Centennial and Chicago Gordon Tech edged up from 13th to 12th.

Galesburg dropped a slot to 13th followed by Chicago Dunbar whose only two losses have come at the hands of Phillips. Carbondale posted two victories but slipped from 11th to 15th and McHenry, boasting a snappy 13-1 record, moved into 16th place taking over from Home-wood-Flossmoor which was dropped following a 68-61 loss to Bloom.

Brown, meanwhile, defended his forfeit action because of roughness and officiating.

"It wasn't just one bad call or non-call," said Brown. "It was a number of them. Sure, they called 10 against Washington and eight against us but it should have been a 35-8 ratio.

"One of my responsibilities as a coach is to develop players of strong moral and physical fiber. If we had continued playing, I really believed there would have been serious mental and physical damage."

Eldorado tops 'A'

By The Associated Press

"Is that good," said Coach Bob Brown Monday when informed his Eldorado Eagles not only remained on top of the Associated Press Class A Illinois High School Basketball poll but missed being unanimous by only nine points. "I guess people must think a lot of us."

So much so that Eldorado pulled down 12 of the 20 first place votes, was named second on six ballots and third on the other two for a total of 311 of a possible 320 points.

Eldorado boosted its record to 14-0 with a 72-45 victory over DuQuoin but things will pick up for the Eagles this weekend when they play at Vienna Friday night and face Carverville Saturday night.

"Vienna's always tough at home," said Brown. "But we are gearing about right as a team."

Lawrenceville remained second in the poll and grabbed four first-place votes while Buda Western held third and notched two first-place votes. The other two votes went one each to fourth-place Venice, the defending state champion, and No. 5 Port Byron Riverdale.

Winnebago, Cairo and Effingham St. Anthony remained in sixth, seventh and eighth places with Mount Pulaski climbing two notches into ninth place and ROVA dropping a rung to No. 10.

Undefeated Gridley moved up a slot to No. 11 and Carmi dropped two places to No. 12. Bloomington Central Catholic, Ottawa Marquette, Pleasant Plains and Watseka rounded out the top 16.

Not a single ranked Class A team suffered a loss last week but Waltonville, 16th a week ago, dropped out and gave way to Watseka. Waltonville boosted its record to 11-0 with a pair of victories. Watseka is 13-1 but apparently has played a tougher schedule.

Waltonville and Madison headed the 32 other schools which received votes in the balloting of 20 sportswriters and sportscasters from throughout the state.

Extension adviser lists herbicides

By M. T. BARLASS
Lee Co. Extension Adviser

Do you have your herbicide all picked out for 1976? Careful selection and proper use of corn herbicides can make your weed control job a lot easier.

It's important to use some "good old-fashioned" common sense and not to expect miracles. Timely rotary hoeing and cultivation should be used to give herbicides some help as needed. They must be applied accurately and uniformly to get the best control.

Many problems with corn herbicides can be avoided if a weed control program is carefully planned.

Here is a brief rundown on recommended corn herbicides for 1976. More complete information is contained in the "1976 Field Crops Weed Control Guide" available at the Lee County Extension office.

Atrazine is still frequently the backbone of a weed control program for corn. It usually does a good job alone on most annual broadleaf weeds and is exceptionally good for control of smartweed. Even reduced rates of 1½ to 2 pounds of atrazine in approved combinations will control most broadleaf weeds.

Atrazine will be available from more than one manufacturer this year. Crop tolerance and weed control should be about the same if the active ingredient is the same. However, quality control is a consideration and products could vary slightly on concentration and a few other characteristics. Insist on high-quality formulations from your supplier.

Ramrod (propachlor) granules are still fairly popular for band application for grass control on moderately dark to dark soils. Bexton will be a new tradename for granules with the same active ingredient as Ramrod. Corn tolerance with Ramrod has been excellent and the same should be true for Bexton.

Ramrod plus atrazine as a prepackaged wettable powder for tank mixing has performed well. For those desiring a broad spectrum granule, Aatram, the atrazine plus propachlor granular combination, has generally performed well.

Lasso continues to be quite popular on both dark — and lighter — colored soils. Control of annual grasses has been very good. And a good full rate of Lasso preplant incorporated can help control nutsedge. The convenience and flexibility of Lasso has made it popular in combinations for either preplant or preemergence applications.

Sutant remains popular for preplant application and is commonly used in combination with atrazine. It has given good control of annual grasses. Although the safing agent that is now included in the product may not completely eliminate possibility of corn injury, it helps considerably.

Eradicane is essentially the same as Eptam with a safing agent added. It is usually more effective than Sutan+ for control of such weeds as wild cane, johnsongrass and nutsedge. Eradicane can also help to control quackgrass. Although not as effective as atrazine for controlling quackgrass, eradican leaves less residue and can be followed by small grain and small seeded legumes and grasses the next season.

Bladex is now registered for use in combination with a number of other herbicides such as Sutan, Lasso, atrazine and paraquat. Bladex controls most annual broadleaf and grass weeds. It can give better control of fall panicum and crabgrass than atrazine, but is less effective for pigweed.

The addition of Sutan or Lasso strengthens grass control. However, incorporation may decrease effectiveness.

Corn is not as tolerant to Bladex as to atrazine and injury is possible, especially when corn is under stress from adverse weather. Using reduced rates of Bladex in combinations and trying to assure good growing conditions for corn can help to avoid the possibility of a problem.

Cycle is a new triazine herbicide related chemically to atrazine and Bladex. It performs about the same as Bladex. Cycle will not likely be readily available in Illinois this season.

Banvel plus Lasso is registered for preemergence use on corn. It has given relatively good control of both broadleaf and grass annual weeds. It appears to be a little better adapted to darker soils and will allow flexibility for crops next year. Corn can be injured by Banvel so the correct rate should be applied very accurately and uniformly. Risk of corn injury increases if the rate of one pint of Banvel per acre (broadcast basis) is exceeded.

Prowl is a new herbicide for corn. It will be available as a liquid for use at rates of 1½ to 2 quarts alone or 1 to 1½ quarts in combination with atrazine or Bladex. Adjust rates for soil texture and organic matter. Prowl can control annual grasses and some broadleaf weeds such as pigweed, lambs-quarter, smartweed and velvetleaf. Corn tolerance is limited. Prowl should be applied only to the soil surface since incorporation increases the risk of corn injury.

Using 2, 4-D postemergence after earlier use of a good grass killer such as Sutan, Lasso or Ramrod provides an effective and economical control for many broadleaf weeds and gives especially good control of annual morningglory and cocklebur. Such a treatment also allows flexibility with crops the next season.

Banvel may be used postemergence in corn, either alone or with 2, 4-D. The possibility of Banvel moving outside the target area to injure soybeans or other desirable plants is of continued concern. However, it appears that the problem has been decreased by applying Banvel early — before nearby soybeans have emerged or while they are still quite small in May or early June.

Directed postemergence sprays for corn have not been popular in Illinois. However, where the need exists, either Evik or Lorox may be considered for control of both annual broadleaf and grass weeds.

Ohio River fishing endangered by pollution levels

CINCINNATI (AP) — Commercial and game fishing on the Ohio River may be endangered by pollutants chlordane and PCB found in catfish at all eight dams between Pittsburgh, Pa., and southern Illinois.

"Frankly," said Leo Weaver, director of the Ohio River Valley Sanitation Commission (ORSANCO), "this is discouraging. We thought we had made great progress in cleaning up the river since the various species of game fish were making a comeback."

Weaver said more than 100 bass fishing tournaments were held on the Ohio this year as sport fishing on the stream was making a comeback.

ORSANCO, set up in 1948 as a joint venture by 12 Ohio River border states and the federal government to clean up the river, said the states involved and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration are asking the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to work out details of a cleanup plan.

None of the agencies involved has taken official action, such as warning consumers or drinking water suppliers, according to ORSANCO. Weaver said that was the job of the FDA or the EPA.

Weaver said the amount of the pollutants is not considered dangerous to humans at present because of the small quantities. However, Weaver said, the states involved are concerned because of a resurging commercial fishing industry in West Virginia and southern Illinois.

The fishermen supply mainly pet food manufacturers, although people eat fish from the river.

ORSANCO requested the fish study after the pollutants were found in small amounts in the river. The report was released last December.

Catfish were chosen because they are bottom feeders," said John Feldman, director of the Cincinnati Food and Drug Administration laboratory. "They are great concentrators."

Weaver said chlordane is an organic hydrocarbon used for termite, grub and pest control. It can cause neurological damage. PCB is polychlorinated biphenyl, a suspected carcinogen or cancer-causing element. It is an industrial coolant used mainly in electrical operations

The Doctor Says:

Lowering blood pressure will not affect levels of cholesterol

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— Does high blood pressure indicate more than the usual amount of cholesterol deposits in the blood vessels? Does the medicine taken to lower the high reading affect the cholesterol?

DEAR READER— High blood pressure does tend to increase the amount of fatty-cholesterol deposits that buildup in the wall of the arteries. In that way it increases the chances of having a heart attack or stroke.

Lowering the blood pressure with medicines will not affect the level of cholesterol. However, eliminating obesity may both lower the blood pressure and decrease the amount of cholesterol in the blood.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I wonder if it is possible that the kids that grew up during the depression were tougher than the kids today. I read your column about school lunches and according to your rules I should have been dead a hundred times over. We didn't have any luxuries such as a refrigerator. My mother stored all our food in a "cooler." This by no means kept the food at a temperature below 42.8 degrees.

I think we had a built-up immunity to salmonella, staphylococcal organisms and their related toxins. I remember many picnics when my mother fried chicken and made potato salad the day before and stored both in the "cooler." The next day we packed the lunch early and went to the picnic grounds where the lunch stood on the table, in the shade if we could find any, for a couple of hours while the kids played games, etc. That alone seems to violate about five of your rules.

Of course, I died 30 years ago and am writing from the spirit world.

DEAR SPIRIT — What makes you think you are so unique? I happened to grow up during the depression on a Kansas farm without a refrigerator or a "cooler." We hung things in a "gunny sack" in the well or put them in the "cellar" under ground.

I do think that rural people who raised and ate their own food did have a limit to the varieties of organisms they were exposed to, as opposed to the commercial food dissemination that exists today.

However, you don't develop an immunity to staphylococcal poisoning. The toxins are in the food, such as potato salad, and you don't develop an immunity to a chemical toxin. That would be like being immune to cyanide.

The other part of the story is that many people did get sick. The fact that you lucked out or don't remember it does not prove the wisdom of such a course. People often do things that are not good for their health or take risks that may endanger their health because they don't know any better. We know better now and we do have refrigerators.
